Pariyatti Presents....

With the recent Pariyatti Presents... event Beyond day Ten... still fresh in our minds, we are looking forward to another one already, also scheduled this summer. On August 30 we will be broadcasting a children's book author panel session with Mélusine Martin (The Five Kings), Björn Kiehne (Peace is Just a Breath Away), and Heidi Fivash (Barb Loves to Sit).

The Five Kings is an illustrated book about Anāpāna meditation, currently available in six languages: Hindi, Marathi, English, Farsi, French, and Spanish.

The story of The Five Kings explains the five hindrances of meditation, which prevent control over the senses. It is a story of a young prince who uses the power of a calm, collected mind to convince five greedy, wrathful, self-indulgent kings to change their ways and, in turn, find their own internal peace.

Its stories, varying from funny to a little sad, provide valuable opportunities to reflect on everyday experiences and respond with wisdom. Inviting to both children and adults to explore happiness and peace through meditation...

Barb Loves to Sit is a stunningly illustrated children's book that helps kids practice sitting with their feelings.

Of most, if not all, Pariyatti Publications a free (non-printable) PDF is made available. These can be downloaded by clicking the free download button on the main product page.

Feedback from a participant of the recent workshop in Germany:

"It's been nice making the connection between the suttas we were reading and studying and listening to it on the following morning and having some input in the evening discourses. Also the 'stories' behind the suttas made it possible for me to connect to it in a more deeper way."

Starting from the late 1970s, courses conducted by Goenkaji in North America drew people from the Pacific Northwest and British Columbia.
